fransplanted to the earthquake district of Italy: That is what happened down in Syracuse, Sicily, where an American woman has thought out and perfected a practical scheme for making refugees work for what they get. It was a new idea to the municipal authorities of Syracuse but their co-operation was secured and as a result occupations were found for hundreds of destitute sufferers. Dr. Katharine B. Davis, superintendent of the State Reformatory for Women at Bedford, N. Y., was the only American woman near Syracuse at the time of the disaster and to her is the credit due for charity organization society plan of safer and to her is the credit due for the unique work established. This story of what happened in Syracuse after the earthquake is taken from letters written by Dr. Davis to friends in this country.

Fishes That Cannot Swim More than one species of fish is met with which cannot swim, the most singular of which perhaps is the maitha, a Brazilian fish, whose organs of locomotion only enable it to crawl or walk or bop after the manner of a toad, to which animal this fish to some extent bears a resemblance, and it is provided with a long upturned snout. The anterior (pectoral) fins of the maitha, which are quite small, are not capable of actg on the water, but can only move backward and forward having truly the form of thin paws. Both these and the ventral and anal fins are very different from the similar fins in other fishes and could not serve for swimming at all. Other examples of nonswimming fishes include the sea horse another most peculiarly shaped inhabitant of the sea, which resembles the knight in a set of chessmen, and the starfish, of which there are many specimens, which mostly walk and crawl on the shore or rocks, both being unable to swim.

The African Ostrich. The African ostrich, from which the best white feathers are obtained, stands six or seven feet high and weighs from 80 to 100 pounds. Its egg is equal to about two dozen hens' eggs. Its feathers sell in Africa for about $200 a pound at wholesale. While walking quietly its step is about twenty-six inches, but when frightened the stride increases to about twelve feet, and at this gait it can run something like twenty-five miles an hour. When pursued it sometimes turns and deals the pursuer a blow with the foot that makes him think of the kick of a mule. The African ostrich is the largest bird now existing on earth. The American ostrich is only about half the size of the African and has three toes, while the African bird has only two. The plumage of the American ostrich is
